TO fogotnot carin

There are two things in life I totally don't like or want to happen...

To forget....and not caring....

Now, both of them would sound the same... but they're so different...

that happened to me, and i was so confused...

someone i really care about forgets everything, almost everything about me...

he doesnt even remember when we got together...

at first, i thought no one can forget that much, not even a grandmother, and thought that he never really cared...

but actually, sometym's people really do forget stuff, especially under pressure...

And not caring is something that hurts so much more than a simple short term memory...

people who say they dont care really pisses me off because they say they dont but actually they do, and sometimes when they're telling the truth, i think they're so god damn cocky!!

NOT CARING....& FORGETING...
